

Memorandum of Understanding

In the collective interest of progressing diversity issues the British Association for Women in Policing (BAWP) and the National Trans Police Association (NTPA) welcome and support the formation of a collaborative partnership to improve dialogue and business between the two Associations.

We confirm support for a joint memorandum of understanding as follows:

"Committed to working together in promoting and exploring opportunities to develop and support diversity within the police service and service delivery."

The guiding principles seek to:

- Promote effective communication
- Promote equality of opportunity
- Share noteworthy practice
- Partnership working
- Creating a service that respects individuals

In forming the agreement, it is important to acknowledge that each of our organisations have specific aims and objectives that may not wholly align, but should none the less be respected. The dialogue created by the formation of this partnership should ensure an understanding of each other's perspective and greater opportunities to collectively achieve our common objectives.

Julie Spence
President BAWP

Chair NTPA